

TWO LUNCHTIME performances in the city today will serve as a taste of things to come in the Summer City programme to be centred on the Dell, behind the Begonia House in the Botanic Gardens, during January.

At 12.30pm a performing Baroque chamber music group (pictured above) will give a recital at Rotary Court on the corner of Mercer and Lower Cuba Streets.

Group members Nigel Keay (violin), Rodney Ford (oboe), Mike Calvert (guitar) and Jenni Dodge (cello) have a basic Baroque repertoire but also play new music of their own composition and extant pieces. The type of music they specialise in is ideally suited to confined settings in park venues.

At 1pm a group of Victoria University music department students employed under the student community work employment scheme will give a performance at the Soundshell in the Botanic Gardens.

This group will also perform at the Dell and form part of a 140-strong force of entertainers working under Labour Department employment schemes whose job it is to liven up Wellington this summer.
